

Knowledge Has Outrun Wisdom Says Novelist

"The Creative Imagination" Is Title of Mr. Morgan's Last Lecture Here.

Mrs. Morgan Also Writes

Both English Writer and His Wife Meet Students and Faculty in Informal Groups.

"This is a scientific age in which man's knowledge has out-run his wisdom. . . . We fall when we have no creative imagination; we fall when we do not see the shape of things to come. . . . Art (the product of creative imagination) is a mirror to enable man to see what he has come from and where he is going." These are words heard last week by those who heard a famous English novelist speak here at the College.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morgan, English novelists who were on the campus last week, closed their engagement with the College last Thursday evening when Mr. Morgan delivered an address at the Horace Mann Auditorium on "The Creative Imagination."

This lecture followed in thought that of an earlier lecture on "Defense of Story-telling." Mr. Morgan, himself, said, "It is an afterthought to what I have written; it is a forward-looking thought to what I hope to write." He believes that the idea of the power of creative imagination underlies all life.

Those who heard him were asked to relieve themselves of any preconceived idea of creative imagination and to follow him as he gave his own specialized meaning to the words. He began by showing that creative imagination was not selfish, that it does not look for special attainment. Creative imagination as Mr. Morgan conceives it is like prayer—it is a means by which man may produce a spiritual change; love is a condition of it. "When we imagine with love, we create what we imagine," he said. Creative imagination is a mutual process—it involves giving and receiving.

In judging a work of art, Mr. Morgan told his audience, people are likely to base their judgment on minor matters rather than upon its creative imagination. "Does it have seen in it to serve generation after generation?" is the question he would ask of a work of art. "No work of art is immortal for itself," the novelist said. "What it has power to become is important; it must have new meaning for each generation." He illustrated by reading the Shakespearean lyric, "Othello." (Continued on Page Three)

College Group to See Helen Hayes

Actress Will Appear as Heroine of Anderson Anti-Nazi Play.

A group of students and faculty members of the College are leaving Saturday morning, May 9, for Kansas City to see the matinee production of "Candle in the Wind" with Helen Hayes. This play was written by Maxwell Anderson, who also wrote "Valley Forge," "What Price Glory," and "Elizabeth the Queen." This production of "Candle in the Wind" is directed by Alfred Lunt.

This play is an anti-Nazi play before America became actively engaged in the war. The purpose of it is to show why America should become interested in the war and oppose the Nazis. The terrible cruelty, both physical and mental, which is practised in the German concentration camps is emphasized. It also shows how important bribes and counter espionage are to the Nazi groups.

The story itself is about an American actress who is caught in Paris by the German invasion. She is betrothed to marry a liberal French journalist who has been writing bitter anti-Nazi articles. He escapes from Dunkirk, gets back into France, and meets his betrothed, but before making their escape, he is caught by German officials. Most of the play is concerned with the American woman's attempt to get his release and to make possible his escape. The Germans accept bribes as long as the actress possesses any money, and at last, through a Nazi who decided to become a renegade, the young Frenchman escapes, meets his betrothed in the Garden of Versailles, and through papers and directions in her possession, he completes his escape.

During her escape, the American is stopped and almost arrested by German officers, but then she tells them that they do not dare, she is released. This play is ended by the American actress saying that she is in the fight to stay.

Ned Colbert Wins National Academy Honor in Science

Daniel Giraud Elliott Medal Is Given for Meritorious Work in Paleontology.

Edwin H. ("Ned") Colbert, Ph. D., son of Mr. George H. Colbert of the Mathematics department of the College, has been honored by being awarded the Daniel Giraud Elliott Medal by the National Academy of Science—one of the highest honors that can come to a scientist in the field of zoology or paleontology.

The announcement came to Dr. Colbert, who is Assistant Curator of Paleontology at the American Museum of Natural History in New York City, in a letter from Fred E. Wright, home secretary of the National Academy of Science. "It gives me great pleasure," the secretary said, "to inform you that the National Academy of Science in Business Session on April 27, 1942, approved the recommendation of its committee on the Daniel Giraud Elliott Medal for the year 1935 be awarded to you in recognition of your 'Sivak Mammals in the American Museum of Natural History,' published in the Transactions of the American Philosophical Society in October, 1935."

This honor which comes to Ned Colbert, son of Mr. Colbert of the College faculty, and himself a former student of the College training school and of the College, is for meritorious work in paleontology. It carries with it an honorarium, but the honor is the important thing, according to those who know how this medal is bestowed. Only three other men in the Museum in New York have received the honor—men whose names are known far and wide: Frank M. Chapman, Henry Fairfield Osborn, and James P. Chapin.

The medal will be formally presented at some future meeting of the National Academy of Science.

Ned Colbert in writing his father of his having been named to receive this medal for work done in 1935 says that he was completely taken by surprise—so much so that he could not think of news he had meant for several days to write his family. He recovers before he finishes his letter enough to give Mr. Colbert news of the three grandsons, George, David, and Phillip, five, three, and two respectively.

Cullen Blumenthal Wins Scholarship

Horace Mann Student Is One of Twenty to Win Chicago Award.

Cullen Blumenthal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Blumenthal and valedictorian of the graduating class at the Horace Mann school, was recently notified that he had received a scholarship to the University of Chicago. He is one of twenty high school seniors to win scholarships in a field of 1,100 students representing 198 high schools in the United States.

Examinations for the awards were held in fifteen key cities on April 4. Blumenthal went to Kansas City for his examinations. The scholarship is worth $150. On the basis of the work he does during his first year in Chicago he may become eligible for a $300 scholarship.

Young Blumenthal, who was 16 last March, completed his high school work in three years. He made an E-average during his senior year.

Mary Smith visited during the week-end at the home of her sister, Mrs. Willard Gillis, in Kansas City, Kansas.

The Society of Sigma Xi, national scientific organization, is installing chapters this spring at Louisiana State University, Utah Agricultural College and Illinois Institute of Technology.

Fine Arts Department Has Displays in Case

The Fine Arts 41 class, which deals with Commercial Art, is exhibiting two framed quotations in the case on second floor. These quotations are made in old English text printing, which is very difficult work. The borders are also done in this medieval style.

Mary Francis Young of Richmond made one of the framed quotations, one taken from Voltaire. Helen Boyersmith of St. Joseph made the other, which is a quotation from Mark Twain.

Also on display in this case is a collection of brass owned and collected by Marvin Green, a student of the College.

Mrs. Morgan Says Pursue Happiness

Books Open Windows for All Who Learn How to Read for Pleasure.

"One of the things which I so much admire in your country is that phrase of yours the pursuit of happiness," said Mrs. Charles Morgan—Hilda Vaughan, as the novelist—in her talk to a group of students and faculty at her last public appearance here last week.

She warned her audience against taking the term too much for granted. "Just as we took for granted our terms Safe as the Bank of England and Safe as a house and found that neither is now safe," she said, "so you may find pursuit of happiness is not to be taken for granted."

Mrs. Morgan made it clear at once that pursuit of happiness is not pursuit of pleasures nor pursuit of money. She tried to show that getting an education should be a pursuit of happiness rather than learning what one is made to learn or learning what one wishes to teach. She tried to show that the period in college should be a time in which one should teach oneself to love something that will give real happiness.

"When food is rationed and the meals are pretty dull," she said, "when clothes are rationed and only two new dresses a year are allowed, when you cannot drive motors, when you cannot go to the theater in short, when you can't have the usual good times, you will learn to make the most of what you have." Here she emphasized the fact that those who have had the opportunity to be educated will still have reading. "Then things you have taught yourself to love," she said, "will be important. Those who have learned to read good books and love them can rely on them."

Books, to Mrs. Morgan—and to her husband, as well—may be divided into those which "open doors and windows" and those which do not; or to put it differently, those which "make the curtain go up" and those which do not. Mrs. Morgan in her talk spoke of the English Bible, the King James version, as of first importance, but said, "How few of your generation read the Bible daily!"

"If we care for the arts, we must read the Bible," she said. "Establish the habit of Bible reading as you read newspapers; it does something to your outlook on life, to your thinking."

Learning to read for the pursuit of happiness, Mrs. Morgan said, is not entirely easy. "If you wish to take up bicycle riding for pleasure," she reminded, "you have to work to learn it."

As parting advice, the English novelist said, "It's worth listening to your teachers till they have opened a few doors for you. Have a good look around at doors opened, and then follow the one you choose."

Mr. Seubert to Speak
Mr. Eugene E. Seubert will go to the Bellevue consolidated school on May 13 to deliver a commencement address. His subject will be "No Rationing in Education."

Delegates Report Mississippi Valley Conference Talks

Four From Here Attend Meeting; Dr. Dildine Accompanies Them.

The Mississippi Valley Conference of the International Relations Club was held in Minneapolis, Minnesota, May 1-2, under the sponsorship of the Carnegie Endowment for Peace. Attending from the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College were Emerald McKay, Herschel Bryant, Edward Carmichael, and Ernest Ploghoft.

Three sessions of 6 round tables were held in which many important and interesting problems of the post-war period were discussed.

In the second session, Saturday morning, Herschel Bryant delivered a ten-minute discussion of problems among the British Commonwealth of nations after the war. Mr. Bryant's analysis of the situation to come was commended in the final round table report on Saturday evening.

Emerald McKay also delivered a ten-minute discussion paper on the problems and difficulties pertaining to labor and industry faced during the war. Mr. McKay also received favorable recognition for his effort in the final summation.

Participating as a discussion leader of Mr. McKay's paper was Edward Carmichael, who developed and elaborated on the various phases of the control of industry and labor.

In the first session, Ernest Ploghoft was a discussion leader of a paper delivered by a student of Carleton College. Mr. Ploghoft placed emphasis on the position Russia will play in post-war international organization for the maintenance of peace.

Miss Amy Hindmeyer Jones of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace was present at the conference, which featured such speakers as Dr. Harold Scott Quigley of Minnesota University; Professor Denis William Brogan of the University of Cambridge, England, noted author of political works; and Dr. Leon Godshall of Lehigh University. Dr. Godshall, who was formerly a professor at the University of the Philippines and at St. John's University in Shanghai, looks forward to a world peace plan of regional units under a grand over-all league or control council.

The delegation from the College returned Sunday and gave reports on Tuesday night to the International Relations Club on their respective sessions of the conference.

Dr. Harry G. Dildine of the Social Science department accompanied the delegates to the conference and stated that he was impressed by the sincerity with which the entire conference was regarded by the delegations there.

Next year Simpson College in Iowa will be host to the conference.

Tommy Frerichs Is Crash Victim

Former Student Dies as Army Bomber Falls at McChord Field.

"Tommy" Frerichs—Lieutenant Adolph T. Frerichs—a former student of the College, was killed when an army bomber crashed at McChord Field, near Tacoma, Washington, Sunday.

Lieutenant Frerichs, while he was on campus from 1933 to 1941, was a popular student. He was in the second class of the Civil Pilot Training program here, having entered the course October 5, 1940. He received his private pilot's license January 15, 1941.

A sister of the young man, Miss Beulah Frerichs, was graduated from the College and is now teaching.

Two other soldiers were killed in the crash that took Lieutenant Frerichs' life and another was seriously injured. Those killed were First Lieutenant Williams E. Comer, Frankfort, Pennsylvania; and Corporal Frank W. Erwin, San Benito, Texas. Sergeant Randolph T. Correll, Perryton, Texas, was injured.

No details of funeral arrangements for Tommy Frerichs are available as yet. It is thought that the funeral will take place at his home, Fairfax, Missouri.

English Drama Is Senior Selection

"Outward Bound" Will be Presented Next Friday Night, May 15.

What happens when a group of people find out they are dead? Naturally, there are as many reactions as there are persons in that group.

"Outward Bound" by Sutton Vane, an English dramatist, the senior class play to be presented next Friday night, brings together on board a ship a group of people who react very differently to this business of being dead. Mr. Lingley (Marvin Green) tries to apply business practices that serve him well on earth, but avail him nothing when he meets the "examiner" in the person of Dick Meyer. Reverend William Duke (Walter Johnson) proves to be a steady influence in the assembly of dead souls. Tom Prior (John Gotsche) reacts as he did when meeting puzzling situations in life—he takes a drink. Scrubby (Andrew Johnson) is the only person on board who is used to being dead.

Mrs. Cliveden—Banks (Hilda Hamblin) and Mrs. Midgett (Mary Ann Busby) provide humor and pathos; while Ann and Henry (Helen Johnson and Kenneth Overton) are the young lovers.

In spite of the tragic subject matter of the play, perhaps because of it, there is humor throughout. With the scene for the judgment of souls in the smoke room of a small liner one might expect almost anything—and get just that.

The play is being directed by Mr. Robert L. Main of the Speech department.

Announce Birth of Son

Students Attend YM-YW Conference

Maryville was well represented last week-end at the Missouri Student Christian Association Conference held in the Federal Recreation Area near Knobnoster, Missouri. Sixteen students, with two sponsors, Miss Marian Lippitt and Mr. Cauffman, and six students from Tarkio College, left Maryville at noon Friday in the College bus and arrived at the camp just in time for some members of the group to help prepare the evening meal in the kitchen cooperative.

Besides the many students who came in cars, a large delegation came in a bus from Park College, and a bus load came from Missouri University. A former Maryville student, Emmert Lawson, who is now attending Missouri University, came with the latter group.

From the arrival Friday until the departure Sunday at noon, the one hundred students and adult leaders at the conference studied, worked, played, and sang together in a spirit of genuine fellowship. The negro students from Lincoln University were the friends of everyone. The attractive South American girl who is attending Park College sang songs in Spanish and tried her luck at teaching some of the boys a South American Rumba.

The inspirational leaders who gave talks and led discussion were James Lubbert, Rector, Calvary Episcopal Church, Columbia; Wilbur J. Kitchen, Secretary of the Student Christian Movement of New England; and Arno J. Haack of Washington University. All talks and discussions centered around the questions, "What can the Christian Association mean to the campus of Missouri next year?" The following students from Maryville attended the conference: Ruth Pfander, Elizabeth Davis, Marjorie Wray, Doris Lee Spicer, Hazel Karriher, Frances Smith, Margaret Hackman, Annette Crowe, Esther Jean Hall, Richard Thomas, Monson Shaver, Harvey Thompson, Mack Jackson, Paul Smith, Marion Moyes, and Buford Elliott.

The next conference to which the local "Y" organizations will send delegates is a regional conference at Hollister on Lake Taneycomo, May 30 to June 7. Students from Oklahoma, Arkansas, Texas, and Missouri attend this conference.

Uncle Sam Is in Dead Earnest

Ted Woodward, former sports editor of the Northwest Missourian is now located at Camp Roberts, California, where he was sent after induction into the army at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. In a letter to the Northwest Missourian, he says, in part:

"It is a war we, these United States, are participating in. And Uncle Sam is in dead earnest in his effort to make soldiers of the vast group of trainees who are his new army."

"Here at Camp Roberts we are working hard, very hard. The average day here is full, and it is long."

Speaking of his own group, he says, "We are a communications outfit and later will receive instruction in the specific duties that will be ours when we are actually to take part in the war; but for now, we concentrate only on the basic school of the soldier."

"We spend hours each day drilling, hiking, pitching tents, listening to lectures. It is surprising how quickly this group of ex-clerks, lawyers, teachers is developing into a company of splendidly conditioned fighting men. But we are still only beginners, and there is still much for us to learn."

"Today we had our first taste of gas, and the experience proved both interesting and uncomfortable—very uncomfortable. We entered a chamber filled with tear gas and remained there for several minutes. Then we made our exits only to re-enter with masks, which we could not put on until we were well into the chamber. Several of the men forgot to hold their breath. They will remember another time! The gas had its effects upon all of us. We had what might be termed 'a cryin' good time!'"

"It is a good army. We, its new soldiers, gripe a bit, but soldiers have ever done this. And we do not mean it really. Each of us has definite plans as to just what he will do on reaching Tokyo."

Then the sports editor that was says, "I miss you folks all a great deal, and I am looking forward to the day when I shall return to the College—which thing I shall do one day, even though I shall be a veritable Methuselah on the campus. I miss the Northwest Missourian. Can you send it to me?" (Editor's note: Yes, indeed!)

Former College Teacher Has New York Position

The April 26 issue of the Nashville Tennessean contained a feature story by Emily Towe entitled "Likely to Be Dramatic Every Day" which was the story of how Miss Day Weems of Dickson, Tennessee, became an executive of the luxurious Richard Lindheim Salon on Fifth Avenue, New York. Miss Weems was a member of the faculty of the department of Physical Education for Women for four years in the College. She left Maryville at the end of the spring quarter, 1941.

Her present duties as assistant promotional manager consist mainly of interviewing clients, telling them what they need for the "making over" process, and acting in groups which are interested in beauty and other jobs. She spends her spare time working for the American Women's Voluntary Services.

Miss Weems stated in the interview that she has always been interested in physical education, and that, although she is having a wonderful time in New York, she intends to go back some day to teaching in a college.

Knowledge Has Outrun Wisdom Says Novelist

Miss "Minn," saying it was important not for its content—which slight in itself, only "You are young; life is short; kiss me now"—but for what it communicates outside itself. Mr. Morgan said that when he reads the lyric, he feels as though a window were opened. The creative imagination in the poem does just that—it opens windows, the speaker reiterated.

Catsmanship interests Mr. Morgan greatly. He says that every true artist knows that of himself he is nothing; he is but the instrument, and must make the instrument perfect. "Then," said the novelist, "to illustrate his point, he referred to the fact that the French Bible has had much less effect than the King James version of the English Bible—which he called 'the outstanding miracle of our literature.' The Bible in the King James version he considers the supreme example of 'the artist's instrument made perfect.'"

"The artist must preserve form," he said in giving advice to those who would write. To that end he must work, and work, and work. He must learn to be submissive to his Muse; he must not question his Muse; he must not let the Muse be his own power and vanity; he must not be afraid of ridicule. The artist is here not for glory and fame, he said; not to teach nor to persuade, but to help man to recreate himself.

Kenneth and Bill Tebow, members of the 128th F. A. band, now stationed at Camp Blanding, Fla., were guests of the Lions club Thursday at the Hotel Linville. Kenneth told something of the life at Camp Blanding and answered questions.

Navy Announces Further Change in V-7 Program

Another change in the Navy V-7 program is announced. A letter from Nathan Young, lieutenant commander, USNR, OTC, makes the change clear.

"Monday I sent out a letter to the presidents of all the accredited universities and colleges in this area to the effect that V-7 would remain open for college juniors who attained junior status after April 15, 1942, and who were over 20 years of age while sophomores.

"Word has just been received that V-7 has been reopened for college graduates and college seniors, and will continue until otherwise directed. This, in addition to the college juniors mentioned above.

"Also, college juniors, regardless of their status, can be enrolled in Class V-7 if they were not eligible for V-1 while they were sophomores. To be eligible for Class V-1, applicants must not have reached their 20th birthday more than 60 days prior to completion of their sophomore year."

Introducing . . .

Charles Silvy

Charles Silvy, who is a third year man on the track squad came to Maryville from Bethany where he attended high school all four years. He ranks third in individual scoring for this season's squad.

Silvy earned two letters in track in high school and one in football. He was a member of the county champion relay team for two years, and during his senior year won the county title in the half mile and placed second in mile run. He also ran the open quarter.

This season will be his first to earn a letter, and at present he has 40 points to his credit, having won first places in the mile and two mile runs. He represents the Bearcats in three events, the half mile, the mile, and the two mile.

Jimmy Jones Talks of Horse Racing Matters

Jim Jones, a former student and well-known to basketball fans of Maryville, is quoted in "The Barber Shop," the column of John P. Carmichael, in which the subject under discussion was horse-training, the special question being about time and what it means or doesn't mean, in a horse race.

Said Jimmy Jones, who is assistant trainer of the Calumet Farm string, "I never pay any attention to it. Track conditions govern time, and I'm not thinking about mud necessarily."

To make his point clear, he said, "When we work two horses, for instance, which we want to compare in speed, we make sure they get on the track a half-hour apart in the morning. A track'll change two or three times in a day. It may be slow at dawn, shifting at 10 o'clock and cuppy shortly after noon. A horse working a half-mile could come up with three different times, depending on when he was sent out."

According to the column story, Jimmy Jones used the results of two races in which the Jones family sent in winners and illustrated his point. In the Kentucky Derby of 1939, Lawrin won; in 1940 Whirlaway won. The young trainer explained: "It took Lawrin 2:04 to run the mile and a quarter; Whirlaway did it in 2:01 2-5. Yet if Lawrin had been running over the track that Whirlaway did, he'd been around in 2:02 himself, at least. Both ovals were fast, understand, but one had been rolled, the other harrowed until it was loose under foot."

The federal government will need 67,000 men with engineering training by June 30, 1943, according to Dean W. R. Woolrich of the University of Texas college of engineering.

Random Shots . . . .

The M. I. A. A. meet at Springfield is the center of attraction in the conference this week-end. Cape, of course, remains the favorite, and from down Springfield way we hear rumors that they are prepared for a battle for second place.

The Bearcats, however, are in good shape, and have the record of two wins in dual meets and one in a 6-team meet, and no losses this season. They have scored 182½ points to their opponents 95½ in the two dual meets.

This meet will be the first taste of conference competition this year for the Bearcats, all other contests being with non-conference squads.

The Springfield dash man Garcia will make an attempt to outrun Barton but it is doubtful that Garcia can lower his time below 10.

Herb Mulkey will bear watching in the Springfield meet, as per usual. An outstanding athlete from Cape, he is at present holder of the M. I. A. A. conference high jump record and is the hurdling ace of the Indian squad.

Spring football is over, but some of the squad members still work out, and will continue to do so throughout the summer.

Gordon Overstreet leads in individual scoring records with 46 points. Schottel is close behind with 42, and Charles Silvy ranks third with 40.

Barton and Murphy are next in the individual scoring honors with 38 and 35½ points respectively.

There will be no tennis entries from Maryville in the state meet, but Buel Snyder will enter in golf.

Maryville Track Teams Hold Seven Conference Records; Bearcats May Take Several Firsts.

The annual MIAA conference outdoor track and field meet will be held tomorrow, May 9, at Springfield. Coach Stalcup left this morning with a smaller squad than he has been taking to various other meets this season.

Cape Girardeau comes to this meet as the favorite, having won seven consecutive outdoor meets and six straight indoor meets. Led by Herb Mulkey, holder of conference high jump record, Roy Spurlock, ace pole vaulter, and Butch Wolfe, discus thrower, the Indians are seeking their eighth outdoor title.

Coach Stalcup will take the following men to the meet: Barton, Schottel, Murphy, Overstreet, Seyforth, Silvy, Parks, Russell, Tritsch, Ramsay, and Fletcher.

Maryville will have no entries in the tennis tournaments. Buel Snyder may enter individually in the golf tourney. There will be an 18 hole golf tournament for coaches on Friday afternoon. Coach Ryland Milner won this tourney last year at Kirksville.

Camera Fans May Enter in Contest

Collegiate Digest Wants Photographs of Real College Interest.

War has failed to curtail collegiate interest in superior photography.

Undergraduates and instructors alike are continuing their camera activity as a "relaxation hobby" of ever-increasing importance during these tense days of international conflict.

And the quality of their lenswork is continuing to rise, as evidenced by this week's issue of Collegiate Digest, The Northwest Missourian's weekly pictorial section. The current issue includes outstanding prints of student and faculty amateur photographers, selected from hundreds entered in a special nationwide contest.

The Salon Edition, presenting the beautiful and unusual masterpieces of collegiate amateurs, is an annual special feature of our rotogravure section and it pays special honor to the high artistic and technical excellence of the work of camera artists on United States college and university campuses.

The prize-winning photos reproduced in the special section were selected from those entered in the largest collegiate amateur photographic contest ever conducted. The high number of entries is an accurate indication of the widespread interest in photography on campuses in all sections of the country, the contest judges stated.

The editors of Collegiate Digest announce that the Salon Edition will be featured again next year. Students of the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College are invited to enter their prize pictures in the contest. The deadline for this sixth national contest will be about April 1, 1943.

Half mile relay, 1:29.1, Maryville, 1934.

Mile relay, 3:25.6, Cape Girardeau, 1935.

CINCINNATI, OHIO — (ACP) — Lack of uniform practices among colleges and universities in Ohio in accepting students by transfer from other institutions serves to tempt transient students to "shop around like a Yankee horse trader" and go to the campus where they can drive the best advanced standing bargains.

This is one of the highlights of a report prepared for the Ohio College association by Dr. Carter V. Good, professor of education in teachers college, University of Cincinnati, as chairman of the association's committee on extension practices and advanced standing credits.

Similar conditions have been found by investigators among colleges and universities in other states, Dr. Good said.

Adding to this academic bargain hunter's paradise are differences among the state's institutions of higher learning in total amount of advanced standing by transfer, extension credit, semester load, methods of evaluation, examination fees, and sources or agencies considered acceptable for credit purposes, the report brings out.

The report covered a year's survey made among 47 Ohio institutions by Ernest H. Ward, University of Cincinnati graduate assistant and field worker for the committee.
